

EL CHE

Che Steakhouse & Bar is a love letter to Argentina and its beloved asados, traditional backyard barbecues featuring platters of rustic flame-finished grilled meats. This is more than just grilling: it is an ethos, a passion, and a way of life.

Just as we honor Argentina's asados, we're proud to share the deep history and our love for South American wine. It's our goal to curate a collection of South American wines unparalleled in the Midwest.

It's an exciting time to focus on South American wines. We believe that the heritage, tradition, innovation and artistry of viniculture in the Southern Hemisphere is fully on display here. We're thrilled to guide you through our list and hope you'll be as deeply impressed as we are.

While we love our food and wine we would be nothing without our team of professionals who have embraced our restaurant and its philosophies. Without them nothing we do would be possible.

Thank You.

ARGENTINE MALBEC

We treat Malbec as other steakhouses treat Cabernet Sauvignon. It is the wine drunk with family and friends. The most prestigious grape grown in Argentina. Discover the differences between Malbec from some of Argentina's most famous growing regions like Uco Valley, Lujan de Cuyo, Salta and others.

THE MENDOZA PROVENANCE

The culmination of the provenance of Mendoza, with sub regions that include Uco Valley, Lujan de Cuyo, Maipu and several more. With the “undesigned” designation this allows grapes to be used from anywhere inside the provenance of Mendoza, and this category allows us to show support to lesser known growing appellations like Uspallata, Vistalba and Barreal. Wines designated as Mendoza can achieve a range of characteristics from dense dark and chewy to fresh blue fruits and elegant minerality.

ANCIENT VINES OF LUJAN DE CUYO

Lujan de Cuyo sits lower in the valley, but is the first place in Mendoza where vines were planted. While they are not common, this is where old vine Malbec grows, with some vines reaching 70 years old or older. The Soils are composed more of Clay, loam and sand creating a richer more savory style of wine.

THE UNIQUE LAND OF THE UCO VALLEY

The Uco Valley is home to extreme elevation Malbecs with altitude ranging between 3,200 to 5,000 feet above sea level. The soils are very rocky due to the proximity of the Andes Mountains and all the alluvial runoff. There is little water in the Uco Valley putting the grapes through a lot of stress to survive, offering deep concentration and color to these wines. The other important component are the drastic temperature shifts from day to night helping build beautiful acidity in an already muscular wine.

UNIQUE CLIMATES OF SALTA & PATAGONIA

Salta lays North of Mendoza, and is some of the highest growing regions in the entire WORLD, some reaching 10,000 feet above sea level. The intense sun and lack of rain in Salta also help add to the deep rich fruit and spice notes of these wines. These Malbecs are some of the “biggest” you can get.

In the opposite direction, there is Patagonia in the Southern tip of Argentina. The Malbecs grown here are more attune to those of France and Cahors where Malbec originates from, with more red fruits, less spice, and a more rustic style.
